Elevation Profile of the Wonderland Trail in Mount Rainier National Park (Final Map 2)

For the final map 2, I stuck with a hand drawn map, and worked from my initial idea. I thought it would be significant to blend 2D and 3D visualizations to better understand the elevation profile in its entirety. Feeling inspired by DuBois's work, I stuck with only a few colors and explored the use of different styles of charts and graphs as he and his team did. I also combined my hand drawn work, with my customized MapBox basemap of the national park which contributed to the color array.
